Constancy in 2015

John L. Hoff

With the year stretched before us, we are suggesting in this issue that it will be important to cultivate constancy in our lives. Each of our individual lives will require us some constancy; the same is true of our relationships and our attempts to accomplish something in the world of work. Just as each day is accomplished by a routine schedule, so also each month requires us to a constancy of effort. And as far as the year goes, we ask if you have some particular things that you want to get done this year?

Constancy is defined as a steadiness that moves us toward our goals and allows us to accomplish things both in the short-term and the long-haul. In 2015 it is our constancy that will enable us to make the changes we need to make and accomplish the work we have to do. For almost 40 years, Colette and I have offered a pace that we might call constancy. Now, Colette and I are delegating responsibilities to others who will face the challenge of being constant in their attempt to accomplish goals and objectives. We are grateful to be around to be supportive, yet initiative will need to come from others who are carrying role responsibilities. We are thankful that we have the health and strength to support our community's progress, yet the actual accomplishment will need to be the result of your efforts and your successes. It will be your constancy of effort that accomplishes progress. You are hearing us pledge our support for your efforts and your leadership.

Constancy is also a very necessary feature of an effective relationship. A lack of constancy and consistency is confusing and is discouraging to others. It is a necessary goal of a well-functioning relationship to attain a constancy that inspires trust. We suggest that each friendship have a conversation about how constancy or steadiness could be improved. One aspect of constancy is that we are paying attention to making and keeping agreements with great care—a phrase which you might recognize from our covenant.

Constancy requires individuals to do inner work to cultivate an inner steadiness that can be expressed in family, friendship, and work life. To cultivate inner constancy you will need to learn how to let go of anxiety, relax, and set your mind at ease. Yes, learning to meditate is one of the skills you will be trying to acquire.

Colette and I encourage everyone in this community to spend a little more time in relaxing and meditating, and we encourage boards and groups that are meeting to acknowledge their concern for helping people they lead talk about their feelings and needs as organizational members. Our community is going through an unusual period of change in which two leaders (Colette and me) are preparing to step back from leadership while supporting the leadership of others. It is right for our organization to be doing this and Colette, and I are finding support for training and coaching that we are doing. We are also encouraging a community-wide awareness of this period of change and emerging leadership.

A Relationship Workshop, March 6 to 8:

Relationship Isn't for Sissies

John and Colette Hoff

At Sahale, Colette and I have the privilege of talking with many groups and communities that utilize our space.

Over time we are becoming more and more aware that one of the uniquenesses of our community is that we are focused theoretically, technically, and practically on learning how to do relationship intentionally and to a standard. When we review the workshops, formal relationships, and the Human Relations Laboratory, we are reminded that most of our programs encourage people to be learning from their relationships by consciously communicating what it is that we are trying to help each other with. It occurs to us that the world presents us with few opportunities to learn from the relationships we are in while we are in them. I don't think we know how to be in a marriage or in a family "automatically" or "unconsciously"; and most of our families of origin and the parent-demonstrations we experienced were inadequate training for our lives and our partners. Thus it is as grown-ups in marriages and families, we have to allow ourselves to start learning again about being more effective as partners. The Goodenough Community, and especially the work that Colette and I have done in teaching relationship, are our first experience of being in a learning environment that focuses on helping everyone learn about relating better.

Relationship has a theoretical purpose, and that is to help people learn about themselves as they go along. It is learning by doing. It is experiential learning with each other and from each other.

There have been several studies of relationship that were done in the last ten years and they draw a similar conclusion:

- Long-lived relationships value most the friendship that has grown.
- Friendship is defined partly by the ease with which partners live with each other and partly by the thoughtfulness with which partners tend to each other's needs.

There is always a lot of value in practicing together and noticing how the same skills are practiced by different personalities and in a variety of situations. We are convinced that trying harder doesn't help as much as consciously developing skills does. Could your relationship use a tune-up and some support from others?

What You Can Expect at This Workshop

This workshop will be held at Sahale Learning Center, a beautiful setting at the tip of the Kitsap Peninsula on the Tahuya River about a mile from Hood Canal. You will be able to hike and get some exercise. You will also be paired with small group (partners will be placed together) where you can practice and be observed and receive feedback. You will also have several sessions which will allow you to practice skills and explore ideas alone and with others. We will be sharing bountiful meals and will have opportunities to socialize as a group. The weekend will begin with dinner Friday evening at 6:30 with the formal session beginning at 8:00 p.m. The weekend will conclude at 3:00 on Sunday

Cost: The cost of the weekend is $175 per person or $350 per couple which includes room and board as well as learning materials.

Shared Housing: Are you interested?

Colette Hoff

For many, many years our community was centered in the Mt. Baker neighborhood of Seattle—a big old house that contained offices and meeting rooms and spaces where most of us could gather. We no longer have this place and are looking for a rental space that:

- Would enable some people who wish to live together
- Would have some rooms useable for meetings and gatherings
- Would have some guest rooms for people who need to stay in the city when they come in from Sahale.
- Would have private space for counseling

Thus it is that we are looking for anyone who would enjoy sharing this space with us. A team has formed to consider the best location and the best space available for our community's needs. John and I will be desiring the use of such a space as a home away from home for 2 to 3 nights per week when we come in from Sahale. This works best economically if others need and want to live in a community setting. If you have some ideas about this, please talk to either Colette or me, Elizabeth or Nan (from the committee, which includes Irene and Kirsten). We are now needing to make this a “urgent” priority and are asking your help. Thank you!

Relationship, Leadership, and Change

Joan Valles

Monday, January 12, John, Kirsten, and I met to talk about the Third Age group and its direction as one of the cultural programs of the Goodenough Community. It's customary in our community to guide our conversations drawn from themes present in our lives-- particularly these days, the importance of relationship for personal and spiritual growth, and changing needs in leadership.

Our Third Age group is meeting this Friday, January 16. As we enter this new year, we are very aware that three of us our turning 80 this year (John, Jim, and me) and one of us (Phil) already celebrated his 80th birthday. We'd like to talk about (and answer questions about) how this is for us. So that's one "theme." Paired with this, and applicable to the younger Third Agers is the theme of leadership. Most of the folks who participate in Third Age have had, and continue to have, leading roles in the community. How do these roles need to change as we age and where we are in our lives? We're inviting conversation about changes we want or need to make; how to use elders well; how we can be most useful, and what leadership looks like for an elder.

The Third Age group is designed for persons roughly age 60 and older, but we're not closed to persons who are interested in supporting us in exploring these issues. We want to be honoring of elders in our community during a time of transition and change. For the future, we would like to establish lifeways of eldership.

In community, we like gatherings to be warm and inviting. We start our Third Age meetings with potluck dinner at 6 p.m. at the home of Phil, Barbara, Jim, and Joan in West Seattle. We'll provide a main dish. Please bring a side dish, dessert, and or beverage to share. An RSVP is helpful to joanvalles70@yahoo.com

- Joan

The Goodenough Community: How you can support us

Our community is supported by the generosity of many – in time, skills, and financial contributions.

Here are some ways your donations helped last year:

- ❖ Scholarships for children to attend our Sahale Summer Camp. (About 25% of families receive assistance each year for the camp.)
- ❖ Scholarships for families and individuals to attend the Human Relations Laboratory. (10 individuals and families received assistance last August.)
- ❖ Salaries for our professional staff, John and Colette Hoff, to enable them to continue their creative and dedicated work on behalf of our community
- ❖ Support for Sahale Learning Center including property expenses, facility maintenance and upgrade, tractor payments, and the general expenses of operations.
- ❖ Increasing food production at Sahale and teaching permaculture methods.
- ❖ Support for interns who provide many hours of work while learning about agriculture and human permaculture. We have supported the work of 5 interns this year.
- ❖ Providing cultural programs: evening gatherings throughout the year and 1-2 weekend retreats to serve women, men, couples, and persons 60 and over (the “Third Age” group.)
- ❖ Educational and training events provided to all interested in learning about individual and social development skills.

This coming year donations will help:

- ❖ Build our scholarship fund. (We would like to maintain an annual fund of $5000.)
- ❖ Continue to build our cultural program offerings which provide support, guidance, and community oriented experiences. Cultural programs are a valued entry point for newcomers interested in community learning.
- ❖ Continued support for Sahale, including the replacement of a hot tub ($5,000), ongoing upgrades for efficiency and guest services, and support for the mortgage and operations. Sahale is one of the main sources of income and introduction to our community as we offer a unique retreat experience for groups and individuals.
- ❖ Continued support for professional staff as John is transitioning to retirement and Colette fills the central role of overall coordination and building organizational capacity with a team of volunteer leaders.

- ❖ Support to continue building our internship program and expand organic food production at Sahale. Our gardens provided much of our produce this summer to residents and guests, saving grocery bills and enabling super healthy meals.
- ❖ Support for the work of making the wealth of community learnings available through written, web, video and other means.

Tod is recovering well!

Elizabeth Jarrett-Jefferson

Tod was admitted for his heart procedure last Friday and was discharged from the hospital Saturday morning and was home by noon. Recovery has been a slow process, reports Tod, but he is making progress every day. Tod hopes to re-engage work next week, and both firms have been generous to him during this time. Tod is running errands and doing his exercise regime 'on the hoof' and is keeping in close collaborative contact with his health care team as he works toward normalcy in his life. ### The Summit of Holiday Fun

Bruce Perler

From the top of 9068' Mt Bachelor in central Oregon, the views of the surrounding Cascade Mountains and the expanse of the high desert prairie and desert are spectacular. I've wrapped up the holiday season this year with my brother. Doug and I, along with our wives Dee and Irene, and our father Robert, joined together for long weekend at our old favorite family resort, Sun River. We've been vacationing there since we were kids and have found it a tradition that worked for us then and for our families now. Irene really loves all the bicycle paths, our father too, as well as the nearby airport where he can chat with old pilots like himself and watch the light planes take off and land. Doug and I have taken the short drive from Sun River to Mt Bachelor Ski Resort a few times but, this was the first time that either of us had been able to take the Summer Lift all the way to the peak of the mountain. It's often either too windy or icy for the summit to be open. Although the conditions weren't great, the views and company were!

Doug and I have been snowboarding together since we switched from skiing in college. We've climbed Mt Hood, returning to the base from high camp on snowboards as well as many trips to local areas; Steven's Pass, Crystal Mt and Timberline Lodge. Now that we've had the chance to ride from the summit of Mt Bachelor, it will be hard to settle for lesser experiences but, a good chute filled with fresh powder or a nicely groomed long-run just about anywhere will do in a pinch.

The holiday has been full of wonderful and meaningful experiences and, this one was certainly the highest elevation, if not the most fun. I do love playing with my brother!

Art at Sahale

Colette Hoff

As various items were being packed away during the move from the Community Center last spring, several people commented that several pieces of art would look great on some of the bare walls around Sahale. During Marjorie Gray's visit to Sahale over the holidays, we pulled out boxes of posters, prints, and paintings, walked around the buildings and made some recommendations about where some of the pictures might be placed. We then recruited Connie DeMers, Josh DeMers and Serna Davidson to hang pictures under Marjorie's watchful eye.

It is wonderful to see the familiar sights back up on the walls, and the feedback from others has been very positive. The next time you come to Sahale, look around and don't be surprised to see an old favorite image. Thank you to all who helped make this happen.

The picture to the right shows the earth as our HOME and now rests in Kloshe on the stair way from the living room to the lower area.

The deAnguera Blog: New Year's Eve 2014

New Year's Eve is a big event here at Sahale. Great dinners with great friends.

Bruce Perler is having a good time chopping up that ham like the great chef he is.

We make it happen. Whatever your New Year's Eve was like, do you think it could compare with ours?

As you can see we are once again gathered at the big dining room table from the Community Center. The table looks best when we are all seated around it like one big family. I wonder how many such gatherings this table has hosted through the years?

To me Christmas and New Year's is all about family and friends. That's why New Year's Eve is such a big thing for us. I am very happy to share in our family activities because there are so many of us and our family can always get larger. You could even join us if you are not already a member.

An increasing number of folks could benefit from an intentional family like ours. Nuclear families can be isolated and even church can be just surface.

What's often lacking is folks you can hang out with. This can be especially true for folks living alone.

I have spent many years living alone at my condo and my current community living situation out at Sahale is much preferable.

Right after dinner on New Year's Eve, we held our Train Dominoes Tournament (Elizabeth was the winner). We stopped at about 11:15PM to gather in the Kloshe living room to share our thoughts and feelings about the coming year: 2015. At midnight we walked outside where Paul Geraci entertained us with a magnificent fireworks display just like the big ones we usually see over Seattle. Lots of booms with spreading sky flowers. The little kid in me was in joyous rapture. I have always enjoyed a good fireworks display and it is nice to have one without fighting huge crowds to get to it. Thanks, Paul.

What will 2015 bring? Even after 15 years having a '20' as the first two digits of the year can still feel a little strange. And those 15 years passed awfully fast.

I no longer have my year 2000 toasting glass. I accidentally broke it about a month ago. I can still remember how it felt to suddenly be in a new century, let alone a new millennium! We celebrated that New Year's Eve at the Community Center in Seattle. Why not at Sahale? We did not own Sahale then. We were still using Seabeck for our Labs. I find Seabeck fading into the past and have to make an effort to remember our pre-Sahale days. I was still living at my Bellevue condo! I still was a CSNT student at Lake Washington Technical College.

We all wondered what the new millennium would bring. 9/11 had not happened yet. My Mom and Dad were still around. And so was our dear friend Beaver Chief. Yes, I have to agree. The 21st Century is turning out to be a lot different than the 20th. 2015 is also my 60th year. In the year 2000 I was only 45 years old.

- Mike

Shared Creativity with Friends

Bruce Perler

Our community has had a website for at least 15 years and over that time, many people have contributed to its content, design and maintenance. Our friend Linda Martin did a wonderful job caring for the site for three-plus years. After Linda joined the Peace Corps and moved to Belize, I took over the management of the site using a new tool, Adobe Contribute, that makes the job much easier. Over this last year, long time friend and GEC member Marjorie Grey has been joining me in the basic maintenance of our site and some dreaming on enhancements and modernizations. I really like working with Marjorie. We've a playful banter and are enough different in the way we think about design that our conversations are dynamic and often creative. I'm thankful for her joining me in this project and for the fresh thinking she's bringing to our web site. We're in a great and important transition for our community as we move into changes in leadership, renewal of our organizations and revitalizing of our teams of members and friends who do the work of keep the Goodenough Community alive and well, now and going forward.

If you have thoughts about our website you'd like to share, let us know. We like to hear what's working and what's not as well as your creative ideas and contributions.

Happy New Year!

Here we are, a fortnight into the new year. It is a time of year when many of us plan to make changes. It's a time of fresh starts, of sturdy resolve, of high hopes and expectations for the future.

Please join us this Saturday, January 17, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at the home of Rose Buchmeier where we will gather to share our lives and to learn from each other. As usual, we will enjoy a light lunch together. Also, as usual, we would like to hear from you whether you plan to attend or not – but do not stay away just because you didn't respond!!
